A Walk in the Park

New Garden Terrace Launches The Menu

The newly-opened Garden Terrace is the perfect spot for city dwellers to indulge in sinful concoctions while soaking in the pleasure of the company of good friends. Leave the hustle and bustle of the city behind and seek refuge in this tropical oasis set against the backdrop of picturesque Jing'An Park. With the air permeated by the scent of fresh bamboo and the serenity of trickling water drowning out the screeching traffic beyond, this is fast becoming Shanghai's best-kept secret for unwinding at the end of another long day.

With a new delicatessen menu designed around the idea of a picnic served on specially designed outdoor tableware, the Garden Terrace shows again how The PuLi Hotel and Spas takes pleasure in crafting a dining experience that exceeds all expectations. Whether dining solo or with a group of fellow bon vivants, prepare yourself for a food and beverage extravaganza incorporating all the finer elements of tasty finger food, exquisite wines and sensational cocktails.

In particular, two original concoctions are bound to blow the minds of even the most seasoned connoisseur. First up is the "Blood and Bitters", an intoxicating blend of Italian stalwarts Campari, Averna and Galliano. This sophisticated mix of herbs, blood orange and star anise is potent yet sophisticated with a dash of protein to bring up a tantalizing froth. Not to be outshone, the "Eastern Caipirinhia" is the perfect Oriental marriage in the tropics – lychee, sake and rum, an homage to the sensual surrounds the Long Bar Terrace enjoys.

Tuck into the delicate flavors of Espanyol with imported Iberico jamon and chorizo sausages or nibble on the quintessential seafood salad (given a new twist by Jing'an Restaurant's team of culinary maestros) with chunks of lobster, crab and prawn. The traditionalist is not left out either, with a selection of fine imported Cheeses, chilled liver parfait as well as the Chef's special beef pie or ham and cheese toastie.
